Welcome to the IRF/gTKP/CHTS 2nd International Convention on Rural Roads!

The great Chinese thinker and educator, Confucius, once remarked how delightful it was to have a friend coming from afar.

As Chairman of the 2nd IRF/gTKP/CHTS International Convention on Rural Roads—to be held in Confucius' homeland from 26th to 29th October 2010 –I am pleased to extend a warm invitation to the many road industry friends from afar, who I hope will join us in Jinan for what promises to be a memorable conference, as well as an unforgettable and enriching experience.

China is, indeed, a land steeped in tradition, which offers visitors both unparalleled sightseeing and the rich cultural heritage of one of the planet's most ancient civilisations.

In recent years, the Chinese government has placed considerable emphasis on establishing a harmonious and developing community at the forefront of the modern world. Large-scale rural road construction programmes, have opened new opportunities for economic and social development; notably in rural areas where they make a decisive contribution towards the alleviation of poverty, as well as generally promote growth and improved standards of living among agricultural communities.

Some hundred thousand kilometres of new rural roads are currently being completed every year, and the pace, speed and quality of construction are expected to be maintained on a long-term basis. The success and benefits of the programme have been widely acknowledged by farmers. Participants at the Convention will review at first hand the advances and achievements of Chinese rural road construction, and assess for themselves the tremendous impact it has had on rural development. We hope they will further be inspired to share the invaluable benefits of their own ideas and precious experience.

The China Highway and Transportation Society (CHTS) is a non-profit, scientific and technical association, with 72,000 members drawn from all fields of highway and transportation. It has 13 chapters, dedicated to road engineering, bridge engineering, tunnels, motor transport, transport engineering and other specialist sectors. The mission of CHTS is to promote scientific and technological advances and innovation, including in the area of rural road construction. We are honoured to have the unique opportunity offered by the Convention to provide platforms for high-level exchanges with members and road sector partners from all over the world.

In the spirit of Confucius, we look forward to welcoming many new friends from afar to China in October for this landmark occasion.
